Shawn Warner-Garcia

Shawn Warner-Garcia is a scholar of language, sexuality, and religion at the University of California, Santa Barbara. She specializes in linguistic anthropology with a research focus on the discourses of sexual ethics among Baptists in the United States. She has also worked extensively in program management and strategic communications for both higher education and nonprofit institutions. Shawn has deep roots in Baptist life from her growing-up years in the southeastern United States, and she earned her BA from Baylor University and an MA from the University of Texas at Austin. In all of her work, Shawn strives to help people communicate more meaningfully about complex issues and to use knowledge and empathy to connect across boundaries. For more information about her work, visit www.warnergarcia.com.